

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

The restaurant that I'm talking about ...

Learning Outcome

Use expressions about relationships and feelings in a range of social and work contexts.

Ask your partner:

- What would you do if you were a manager and people found it difficult to understand what you were talking about?
- What are some ways you could identify something if you couldn't see it?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about jobs, work, and social activities.
- I can express complex statements using words like who, that or which.
- I can talk about wishes and imaginary situations.

Let's Explore!

Vanessa is reading a brochure about managing a restaurant.

* A "brochure" is a small book with information on a topic. Another word is pamphlet.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

Welcome to restaurant management! We're sure this is a career that you will find very rewarding and enjoyable.

I wish I was always right, but in this business, it's the customer who is always right. Even if you don't agree with a customer's complaint, how you work through problems and come up with a solution will determine if the customer comes back to your restaurant. Restaurant managers must work towards this goal.

For a restaurant to run smoothly, it is important that each employee has an understanding of the role that has been assigned to them. The manager should go over every employee's role, and employees need to go along with how things are organized.

People who go out for the evening want to have a good time. They come in to your restaurant for a reason. If they don't know your restaurant, you need to give them one, like a special deal. Promotions can range from a nightly happy hour to prix fixe menus, to two-for-one dinner specials.

A restaurant menu should be updated regularly. The price of food changes and the cost of running a business changes as well. I wish food cost less, but it is very expensive. Restaurant menus have prices that keep food costs low and profits high.

Let's Practice!

Phrasal verbs are very common. Gareth and Samantha are talking about their work at the restaurant.

Instruction: Draw a line to match the words with their definition in Column A and Column B.

Column A

Column B

- 1) Can we go over
- 2) Want to go out
- 3) Let's come up
- 4) Come in
- 5) Please go along

- a) on the town?
- b) to our restaurant!
- c) with an idea.
- d) with the work schedule.
- e) the main menu?

Let's Practice!

Let's make complex sentences!

Instructions: Read the sentences and circle the correct words to complete them.

- 1) People _____ who / which go out for the evening want to have a good time.
- 2) It is important _____ that / why each employee has an understanding of the role that has been assigned to them.
- 3) The price of food, _____ who / which is very high, has gone up even more recently.
- 4) The restaurant _____ when / that we rented was near the center of the city.
- 5) The woman _____ who / which lives next door to me brought me a cake.

Extension Activity

Your partner wants to know what you are talking about. Practice writing complex sentences about people or things around you.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Make a list of 6 people or things in your environment. You can talk about a building, a notebook, a project, etc.
- Write a complex sentence about each person or thing. Start your sentence with "The (neighbor, notebook, restaurant, etc.)..."
- Add one of the relative pronouns: who, that, which.
- Write a relative clause identifying the person or thing you are talking about. The relative clause can be something like: ... who lives near me ... or that is on the corner ...
- Finish your sentence with a different clause.
- Proofread your sentences.
- Read your complex sentences to a partner.

Self-Assessment

Yes No

I identify people or things in my environment.

☐ ☐

I write complex sentences about the people or things.

☐ ☐

I proofread my sentences.

☐ ☐

I read my sentences aloud.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- to work through (verb): to succeed in doing difficult tasks, such as solving problems
e.g. How you work through problems and come up with a solution will determine if the customer comes back to your restaurant.
- to work towards (verb): to take actions with the hope of reaching a specific goal e.g. Restaurant managers must work towards this goal.
- to go along (verb): to accept, to agree to e.g. The manager should go over every employee's role, and employees need to go along with how things are organized.
- complaint (noun): written or oral comments disapproving of a product or service e.g. Even if you don't agree with a customer's complaint, how you handle it will determine if the customer comes back to your restaurant.
- happy hour (noun): after work, when drinks are reduced in price e.g. Promotions can range from a nightly happy hour to prix fixe menus.

Learning Points

Phrasal Verbs

A phrasal verb is a phrase formed with a verb + preposition.

The combination of the verb and preposition changes the meaning of the verb.

Here are some phrasal verbs related to work:

to work towards -- to take actions hoping to achieve a specific goal

to come up -- to think of

to go over -- to review, to study to go along -- to accept, to agree to

to come in -- to enter

to go out -- to leave the house, to go to a place or places in the town or city

You conjugate phrasal verbs in the same way you conjugate other verbs.

Affirmative Form	Question Form	Tense
I go out on Saturdays.	Do you go out on Saturdays?	Present tense
I am going out this evening.	Are you going out this evening?	Present Continuous tense
I went out last Saturday.	Did you go out last Saturday?	Simple Past tense
I have gone out every Saturday this month.	Have you gone out every Saturday this month?	Present Perfect tense

Examples:

- Restaurant managers must work towards this goal.
- The manager should go over every employee's role, and employees need to go along with how things are organized.

Learning Points

Subject and Object Relative Clauses

When you want to make a complex sentence that has different clauses (phrases), you need to use a relative clause.

You can begin a relative clause with the relative pronoun who for people, which for things or that for either people or things.

You put the relative clause immediately after the noun it talks about.

A subject relative clause describes the subject of the clause.

An object relative clause describes the object of the clause.

Example 1:

The woman who lives next door to me brought me a cake.

The clause - who lives next door - refers to the woman.

Who lives next door? The woman

The relative pronoun who is used because you are talking about a person. It is also the subject of the clause.

Example 2:

The restaurant that we visited was near the center of the city.

The clause - that we visited - refers to the restaurant.

Restaurant is the object of the clause.

What did we visit? The restaurant.

The relative pronoun that is used because you need this information to understand the meaning of the sentence.

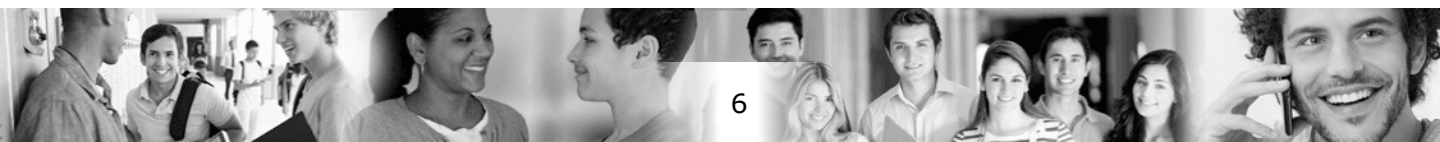

Example 3:

The price of food, which is very high, has gone up even more recently.

The clause - which is very high - refers to the food.

What is very high? The price of food.

The relative pronoun which is used because the information is not required for the meaning of the sentence.

Learning Points

Sentence	Relative Clause
People who go out for the evening want to have a good time.	... who go out for the evening ... (Who goes out? People. Who is a subject pronoun)
Each employee understanding the role that has been assigned to them is important for a restaurant to run smoothly.	... that has been assigned to them ... (What was assigned? The role. That is an object pronoun)

Examples:

- People who go out for the evening want to have a good time.
- Each employee understanding the role that has been assigned to them is important for a restaurant to run smoothly.

