Learning Outcome

Exchange advice and suggestions in communicative situations.

Ask your partner:

- What are some situations when you need to ask for help?
- How do you ask for help?
- Do you think people help each other enough? Why or why not?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about food and drinks.
- I can ask for help or advice.
- I can discuss how to deal with problems.

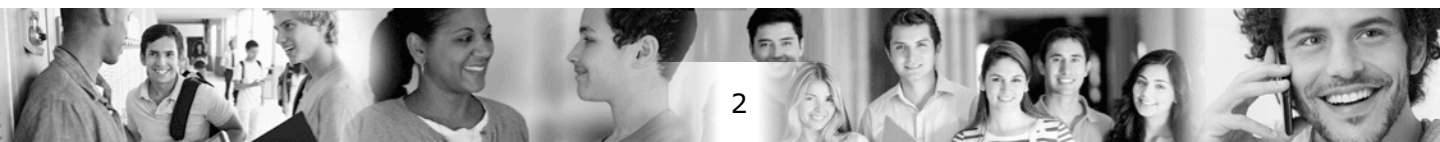

Let's Explore!

Peter and Vanessa talk about restaurant management. Do you think it sounds exciting?

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Peter: Can you explain to me how a restaurant works?
- Vanessa: Sure. There's a lot of planning and work going on behind the scenes. Getting a meal in a restaurant appears simple, but there are always lots of problems!
- Peter: Could you tell me what some problems are?
- Vanessa: Well, first we have to make sure we have enough food. It's difficult to keep track of fresh produce.
- Peter: I would make a list of ingredients. Then do an inventory.
- Vanessa: Yes, we do that on a regular basis. Customers are annoyed when we run out of menu items. I also have to chart the costs of the food. Another problem is making sure we have the right number of staff members to serve the clientele.
- Peter: I wouldn't want people to come to work on a slow night. You could have some employees on backup.
- Vanessa: Sometimes we can, but people need to know when they are going to work. Then there's the problem of ambiance. We want the restaurant to be busy, but not too noisy. When people go out, they want to be able to socialize.
- Peter: It all sounds so exciting!

Asking for Help and Advice

There are several ways to ask for help in English. You can use polite and casual language to do this.

Let's look at one particular structure for asking for help. This is called a question within a sentence.

You can use the structure:

Can/Could + you + verb (show/tell/explain) + (to) me + question word (how ... why ... where ... who ... etc.)

Notice how most of these examples end with a verb. If the question word is "how to", there is no verb at the end.

Modal Can/Could	Subject	Verb	Question Word
Can	you	tell me	what some problems are?
Could	you	explain to me	how a restaurant works?
Could	you	show me	where the washroom is?

Examples:

- Could you tell me what some problems are?
- Can you explain to me how a restaurant works?
- Could you show me how to organize a work schedule?

Discussing How to Deal with Problems

One way to discuss how to deal with problems is to say what you would do if you were in someone else's situation. This is a polite way of communicating if you use the modals would or could.

I would ...

I wouldn't ...

You could ...

These are examples of Peter giving Vanessa suggestions about how to deal with the problems she is discussing.

Examples:

• Vanessa: It is difficult to keep track of fresh food.

Peter: I would make a list of ingredients and then do an inventory.

• Vanessa: Another problem is making sure we have the right number of staff members to serve the clientele.

Peter: I wouldn't want people to come to work on a slow night. You could have some employees on backup.
