Let's Start!

Pronunciation spot: You must have a busy schedule!

Learning Outcome

Exchange advice and suggestions in communicative situations.

Ask your partner:

- What do you know for sure about your partner?
- What can you speculate about your partner?

Can Do Statements

- I can say and use the sound sch.
- I can speculate about feelings and impressions.
- I can use proper intonation in long questions.

Let's Explore!

Tom reads Sally's article about healthy eating. It will help her make menu choices for Bistro 88.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

Healthy eating is very important. There are so many articles and conversations about it, that it must be difficult for a large number of people. Don't get schooled about eating your vegetables! Think about putting together your own healthy diet by following a few small, easy-to-manage steps, like the way you learn new things at school or work.

Start by preparing as many of your meals as possible and follow a schedule. Cut down on unhealthy foods, and replace them with more nutritious ones. Substituting vegetable fats (for example, switching butter for olive oil) for animal fats will be beneficial to your health. I speculate that eating healthy must make a difference in how you feel.

Instead of worrying about calories, look at your food in terms of color, variety, and freshness. Try to avoid packaged, processed foods. Get some fresh ingredients onto your table and into your lunch bag.

Read the labels. It's important to be aware of what's in your food. Many packaged foods claim to be healthy, but they must have large amounts of sugar and salt.

After you eat, stop to consider how you feel. Don't you think that the more you eat healthy food, the better you'll feel after a meal? In time, the junk food you eat will start to make you feel uncomfortable, unsatisfied, and without the energy you need to get through your day.

Follow these tips and you will create your own schema of healthy eating.

Let's Practice!

Vegetables have so many nutrients, it must be important to eat them!

* "must": This is an example of must showing speculation. Another way is using can't in a sentence that is not true.

Instructions: Complete the sentences. Circle the correct words.

1. Healthy eating is the topic of many articles and conversations, so it _____ must / can't / won't be interesting for many people.
2. Counting calories _____ can't / can / must be the only way to lose weight. You can also eat more healthy foods.
3. Eating healthy _____ can't / shouldn't / must make a difference in how you feel, don't you think?
4. It _____ must / can / can't be true that packaged foods are good for you. They are terrible.
5. Going on a diet _____ must be / should be / isn't hard for many people, since so many people give them up.

Let's Practice!

Here are some questions* for you!

* "questions": In a long question, you can chunk parts together around important content words, like adjectives or verbs.

Instructions: Organize and write the mystery sentences.

1. processed / and / * / you / ? / Do / opt / * / fresh / avoid / more / for / * / foods / ingredients / packaged / * / and

2. ? / Don't / food / * / you / * / better / the / that / , / feel / think / meal / * / more / a / the / you / eat / healthy / after / you'll / *

Extension Activity

Speculate about different people and situations from images.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Take 5 - 6 images from a magazine or from the Internet. Try to choose images that have a lot of people and action going on.
- Speculate about something in each story. Use must or can't.
- Continue until you have talked about all the images.

Self-Assessment

Learning Points

Consonant Blends -- The sch Sound

Consonant clusters like /sch/ can occur at the beginning of a word in English. In these words, the /ch/ letters usually sound like /k/.

Practice blending the sound from one consonant sound into the next without adding a vowel sound in between.

Read the following words aloud.

*schema	school	schooled	scholar
*schedule	scheme	scholastic	schism

*The words schedule and schema can be pronounced in two ways, like /sk/ or /sh/.

Examples:

- Don't get schooled about eating your vegetables!
- Follow these tips and you will create your own schema of healthy eating.

Learning Points

Linking and Deletion with Must

When a word ending in consonant +/t/ links into a word beginning with a consonant, the final /t/ of the first word is often deleted. This is often the case with the word must.

When you delete (or drop) the final /t/, the sound before the /t/ must link smoothly into the following word.

You must be starving = You mus_be starving

When the word have follows must, have is reduced to “_ov” or “_av”.
The 't' sound joins the reduced have.

must have = mus_tuv or mus_tav

Phrase	Pronunciation
must find	mus_find
must be	mus_be
must just hustle	mus_jus_hus_sul
must have forgotten	mus_tuv forgotten mus_ta forgotten

Examples:

- This is the topic of many articles and conversations, so it must be (mus_be) difficult for many people.
- Eating healthy must make (mus_make) a difference in how you feel.
